

National Campaign on Prevention of Violence against Children

Violence is dehumanizing. It causes harm and grief. It's a threat to everyone and society as a whole.

Some groups are more vulnerable and need to be supported and protected! Among these women and children. Their lives are closely knit together.

Violence calls for more violence.

By working with children and by preventing violence against children, there is a hope of breaking the vicious circle and promoting a non-violence culture.

In line with International Campaign for Violence Prevention led by the WHO, The Ombudsperson for Children has launched a National Campaign on Prevention of Violence against Children .

We are i.t.c. appealing to your sense of responsibility and encouraging all of you to sign the pledge below.

Please answer positively by replying back. The collected pledges will be sent to Ombudspersons Children's office and will represent the University's input to this laudable campaign .

Counting on your collaboration.
