

The University of Mauritius

in collaboration with

The LSE Society Trust Fund

cordially invite you to a series of Public Lectures on Economics

by

Prof. Danny Quah

Professor of Economics at the London School of Economics and Political Science

as per the programme below.

Date	Time	Venue	Topic
Thursday 18 Mar 2010	14.30 – 15.30	Lecture Theatre II	World tour: The facts observable from outer space
Friday 19 Mar 2010	11.00 – 12.00		Why knowledge is a peculiar economic commodity
Friday 19 Mar 2010	13.30 – 14.30		Trade and global imbalances (Global savings glut)

Professor Danny Quah

About Prof Quah

Prof Quah holds degrees from Princeton and Harvard, and was Assistant Professor of Economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology before joining the LSE.

He has consulted for among others the World Bank, the Bank of England, and the Monetary Authority of Singapore. He also serves on the Editorial Boards of East Asian Policy, Journal of Economic Growth, and the Journal of Global Policy.

His research is now on the global economy, economic growth and development, income inequality, international economic relations, economic geography, and new technologies. He has also previously worked in time series econometrics, inflation, and business cycles.

He holds a blackbelt in taekwon-do.