

BA (Hons)/MA English Studies (F/T) - SH 537

1. Context and Objectives

The Department of English Studies is committed to furthering the understanding of English language and literature in the context of contemporary culture and society. Using approaches that provide theoretical, linguistic, literary and cultural perspectives, the Department focuses on the political as well as the aesthetic dimensions of English as a form of communication and artistic expression.

The Department of English Studies is offering a four-year full time BA (Hons)/MA in English Studies. The BA/MA degree programme is designed to provide knowledge and competence in the fields of literature, language, culture and society for a wide range of professions in such sectors as teaching, the civil service, the media or public relations.

A key objective of the Department of English Studies is to offer training in theories and methods of literary/critical thinking as well as their application in practical contexts. By focusing on specific genres and texts, we encourage students to engage in critical practices that make them aware of the effects of social, political, cultural, historical, and ideological formations on individuals and societies.

The identity of the Department is framed by the selection of key themes that define its curriculum:

- Canonical Literature
- Language and Linguistics
- Postcolonial and Multicultural Studies
- Critical/Literary Theory
- Popular Culture and Cultural Theory
- Cultural Studies
- Gender Studies
- American Studies
- Indian Ocean Literatures

2. Learning Outcomes

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

- Engage with major literary genres, concepts and theories;
- Display understanding of the core areas of English linguistics;
- Evaluate and apply a selection of linguistic theories with reference to specific social contexts;
- Analyse various cultural texts (such as the written and the audiovisual) with discernment;
- Display critical and independent thinking;
- Demonstrate cultural and cross-cultural awareness;
- Communicate ideas by constructing sophisticated arguments orally and in writing;
- Apply research skills to produce an academic piece of work that demonstrates accuracy of language and content.

3. Teaching and Learning Methods

The primary objective of the Department of English Studies is to help students hone independent thinking, creativity, and oral/written communication skills. Modules are conducted through a combination of lectures and seminars, with a strong emphasis on student participation and interaction. Small-class seminars concentrate on student writing and speaking and offer substantial opportunity for intense as well as informed discussions.

Students will be required to participate actively in seminar discussions, write in a variety of formats (short seminar papers, long take-home essays), and present seminar papers regularly.

Every semester, each of the modules will be taught over 10 weeks and will include 30 hours of contact, consisting of class hours, tutorials and practicals. Each of these modules will also involve 60 hours of self-study and 90 hours of other learning activities.

4. Entry Requirements

- General: In accordance with the University General Entry Requirements for admission to Undergraduate and Postgraduate Degree Programmes.

YEAR III

In the third year, students choose 5 Electives from the list of 3rd year Departmental Electives and write a Research Project (6,000 words excluding Footnotes and Bibliography) in an Area of Concentration.

Outline of the Research Project

Each student is expected to start developing and defining his/her ideas about the Research Project in consultation with a supervisor during the second year. This process of selecting and refining a Research Project topic will be conducted in the context of Departmental areas of concentration as well as individualised readings. Students have to research and organise their readings throughout their second year.

After consulting his/her supervisor, each student will submit a Research Project Proposal (2-3 pages excluding a Bibliography) at the end of the second year.
