

BA (Hons) Law with Management (F/T) - LM314

1. Context and Objectives

This undergraduate programme intends to expose prospective professionals to a panoply of legal and managerial subjects which are geared towards emerging sectors in Mauritius. It broadens the scope of the legal profession and develops wide competencies for future legal officers/legal managers. It encourages degree holders with a good legal background to join other emerging sectors.

2. Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the programme, students should be able to:

- understand and apply basic concepts of accounting;
- develop managerial knowledge and skills in various areas and apply the management principles taught;
- develop legal skills so as to analyse case law, interpret statutes and apply legal principles; examine legal issues and explore legal problems related to various specific legal fields.

3. Teaching and Learning Methods

This programme will be taught through a combination of face-to-face lectures, tutorials and online training and seminars including discussion forums, web-based research through available open educational resources and online assessments. The teaching methods focus on practical as well as theoretical means with a view to develop the analytical and critical skills of students that are essential for the workplace.

With a wide range of modules available on the programme including work-based learning placements and a variety of assessment methods such as simulated court proceedings, advocacy and presentations, students will be able to discover the academic areas where their true interests lie.

A typical semester module will carry 6 LCCS credits which represent 180 notional learning hours broken down as follows: 30 hours of teaching, 60 hours of self-study and 90 hours of other learning activities.

A typical yearly module will carry 12 LCCS credits which represent 360 notional hours broken down as follows: 60 hours of teaching, 120 hours of self-study and 180 hours of other learning activities.
