

BSc (Hons) International Business Management (F/T) – LM307

1 CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

The integration of markets urges organisations to work beyond their national boundaries and compete in diverse global environments. Therefore, to be effective in business and management in such a complex and challenging environment, leaders and managers need an understanding of the global context (cultural, economic, political, legal and social) in which organisations operate, both within and across national borders. The BSc (Hons) International Business Management is designed for local and international students seeking a career in the growing global economy. The objective of this programme is to help graduates develop key intellectual, analytical, employability and inter cultural skills to succeed in the global work place across different sectors. Competencies developed in the field of communication, marketing, negotiation, business planning, finance, market entry strategies and international law and regulations will allow students to work in diverse cross cultural contexts. In addition, it will provide a stepping stone to students who want to pursue higher studies in the field of international business.

In the first year of the study, students will learn the fundamentals of management and the global business environment. They will explore relevant aspects of economics, accounting, marketing and law. These core topics are further consolidated in the second and third year of the study where students will apply the learnt concepts in a global environment. In the second year, the students will also develop an understanding of the research design as well as the different statistical tools and techniques that will help them in the preparation for their final year dissertation. The core units of the second and third year include units such as international marketing, regional integration and international institutions, international finance, supply chain management, communication, strategy, operations management and corporate entrepreneurship among others. In the final year, students will have opportunity to apply their research skills to answer research questions pertaining to a topic (preferably in the field of international business) which stimulates their interest the most.

The objectives of the BSc (Hons) International Business Management programme achieved through the module content, choice and delivery are to:

- prepare graduates to be employable and succeed as a manager or leader, in many careers across different sectors both locally and internationally and
- generate enthusiastic graduates who may consider further studies such as MSc and MPhil/PhD degrees to build higher capacity.
